THE RED SOX WELCOME YOU TO FENWAY PARK FOR THE 1975 LEAGUE CHAMPIONSHIP SERIES

The Boston Red Sox became a member of the American League in 1901, the second year of the league. Tom Yawkey has been its president since 1933.

The team was known simply as the Boston Americans at the start, but, in 1908, it was decided the team would be called the "Red Sox." That has been the official name of the team ever since.

RICHARD H. O'CONNELL
Exec. Vice Pres. & Gen. Manager

The most exciting baseball park in the nation was originally built in 1912, and rebuilt by Mr. Yawkey in 1934. "The Green Monster"—The most famous wall in the American League, Fenway's leftfield wall, is 37 feet high with the screen another 23 feet.

The Red Sox have won the American League championship eight times: 1903, 1904, 1912, 1915, 1916, 1918, 1946, 1967 In 1903 the challenge to play the National League winning team in a post-season series was accepted, and the Boston team was the winner, five victories to three over the Pittsburgh team representing the National League. A similar challenge was not accepted in 1904.

The so-called World Series was started in 1905. The Boston team was the winner of the series in 1912 over the New York Giants, four victories to three with one tie game; Boston won in 1915 over the Philadelphia Phillies, four victories to one; Boston won over the Brooklyn Dodgers in 1916, four victories to one; Boston won over the Chicago Cubs in 1918, four victories to two; Boston lost to the St. Louis Cardinals in 1946, four victories to three; Boston lost to the St. Louis Cardinals in 1967, four victories to three.

During Mr. Yawkey's ownership, the team has won the A.L. championship twice, finished second 8 times and third 9 times. This is the first appearance for the Red Sox in the A.L. Championship series.

TOM YAWKEY THE

On the walls in Tom Yawkey's Fenway Park office are some photos. Eddie Collins and a young Yawkey, looking toward an unknowable future; the familiar face shot of Dwight Eisenhower with a personal inscription that begins: "To Tom Yawkey . . .", a classic picture of Ted Williams, swinging against the backdrop of a packed Yankee Stadium.

All photos of a day gone by. Pictures of the past, of, as we are so fond of saying, simpler times. And all clear evidence, of course, that the owner of The Boston Red Sox is living in the past, existing on memories.

Ha, and double ha. Thomas Austin Yawkey ("my age? Oh, 72 and a half is about right") is as much a part of the present as tomorrow's sunrise. He's as much a part of today as high prices, flights to the moon and the designated hitter.

The answer to what keeps him young can be found within the confines of 24 Jersey St., where, on the best professional ball diamond in America, men play a boy's game for money.

Baseball keeps Tom Yawkey young, or to be more specific, those who play baseball for the Red Sox keep him young.

"The best part of being involved with all this," he said one day recently, waving his hand to indicate the park, "is that it keeps me in contact with good young Americans. Does that sound corny? Well, there are good young Americans, you know. All the young people aren't breaking into churches or stealing television sets."

The current Red Sox are loaded with young players, and Yawkey has made it a point to become acquainted with them all. Tim Blackwell, for example.

YAWKEY: RED SOX

by RAY FITZGERALD
of The Boston Globe

"When we brought him up last year, what was he, 21? I sat down with him one day and talked, not just about baseball, but about Tim Blackwell. Where was he from? What was he like? What were his thoughts on life? I found out Tim Blackwell may have been only 21, but he had the mature mental approach of a man 29 years old."

Early last season, V.P. Haywood Sullivan took Yawkey to Pawtucket to watch Jim Rice and Fred Lynn and, to meet them. Yawkey was impressed, not only with the way they could play, but with the two as human beings. He's seen nothing to change his opinion.

"I'm not going to say I thought they'd make the splash they have up here," he said. "But Rice, with that short stroke, you knew he could hit anywhere when he became selective with pitches. And Lynn, he was so impressive, an all-around instinctive player who does the little things some never learn."

And keeping young also means understanding that everyone doesn't march to the same drummer. Tom Yawkey is fond of Bill Lee.

"Bill's a helluva thinking guy. He relieves the tension. Just because a man plays ball for a living doesn't mean he can't have opinions about things outside baseball. He doesn't break any laws with his conversation. There's nobody on the ball club I've had better one-on-one talks with than Bill Lee."

Yawkey, comparing 1967 with the season just past, said that '67 was a bigger surprise.

"Things just broke right. (Dick) Williams did a helluva job as manager, and kids like Reggie Smith and Mike Andrews came through.

"This team has more bench and we got help from so many people. Doyle, Willoughby, Burleson did such a job, he's a winning ball player. And Lynn and Rice, of course, well heck, you don't win anything without everybody on the team contributing."

There were times, of course, when baseball life wasn't so exciting, times when the agony of defeat, as they say on Wide World of Sports, exceeded the thrill of victory.

"I must admit I didn't always look forward to the next ball game," Yawkey said, "and once or twice, I felt like chucking the whole thing. But we all feel that way sometimes. All of us, at one time or another, wonder if it's all been worth it."

But through it all, the fun and the headaches, baseball's been his only game. Asked if he thought about becoming a sports mogul, Yawkey told a story.

"Once, Connie Mack had Bob Johnson and we had Roy Johnson and I said to Connie: 'How'd you like to have both Roy and Bob?' And you know, they weren't the easiest guys to handle on a team, so Connie said to me: 'no thanks, one's enough.' 'That's how I feel about getting involved in other sports. One's enough.'"

And so Tom Yawkey twirls the radio dials in the late hours to pick up out-of-town games. He visits the locker room to inquire after the athletes' well-being. He sits in his roof box and when the team loses, maybe he plays the game over that night in his mind.

But, baseball's his game and the Red Sox his team, and together they keep Tom Yawkey, in his 43d year as owner — a young man.

HE REMAINED CALM . . . WHILE OTHERS WORRIED !

DARRELL JOHNSON

One can only speculate on what emotions swept through Darrell Johnson's mind last year when the Red Sox lost the American League Eastern Division championship because of a lamentable September slump, but there need be no speculation about how Johnson feels in this year of Red Sox triumph. Satisfaction is the best word to describe how Johnson accepts his team's success.

Johnson is not a man to wear his feelings on his sleeve. He shows occasional anger, but the ups and downs of managing a major league baseball team seem to affect him a lot less than other managers. But, he would hardly be human if he did not feel particularly satisfied because of the Red Sox progress in 1975.

The 1974 Red Sox were not supposed to win the division, but nearly did. They came close despite a lost season by pitcher Rick Wise who won only three games. Wise and Reggie Cleveland won only 15 games between them after being acquired in off-season trades. Johnson and every other Red Sox executive was under heavy pressure last winter to trade for more starters because of the disappointing seasons by Wise and Cleveland.

Convinced that both Wise and Cleveland would bounce back, the Red Sox did not trade for pitchers. Their only winter deal was the acquisition of infielder Bob Heise who was never destined to see much action.

As spring training arrived, the pressure on Johnson was heavy. He needed to develop a starting rotation, find more relief help and decide which of his talented young outfielders would crash the starting lineup.

While others worried about those problems, Johnson insisted there was nothing to worry about.

"Those things have a way of working themselves out," he kept saying. "I'll never lose sleep because we have too many good players."

Looking at such young talent as Juan Beniquez, Cecil Cooper, Jim Rice and Fred Lynn, sports writers wondered how Johnson could possibly find enough playing time for them. He already had Dwight Evans, Bernie Carbo and Rick Miller battling for outfield positions. Where, for example, would Rice and Lynn play?

In Lynn's case it was easy. The former Southern Cal star took complete charge right from the start and has been a fixture in center field ever since. In fact, he probably will be a fixture there for the next decade.

Rice was another story. The most heralded Red Sox rookie since Carl Yastrzemski, Rice was without a regular job throughout spring training.

By LARRY CLAFLIN

(Boston Herald American Sports Columnist)

When the season opened he had to wait until the Tony Conigliaro experiment ran its course before he got a chance as designated hitter. Then, he had to wait again until he was allowed to play on defense.

While others demanded an early opportunity for Rice, Johnson took his time. The results were dramatic. Rice joined Lynn in the 100-RBI category and played much better in the field than a lot of fans expected.

Cooper was another player who saw very limited service early in the season. But, once Cooper started hitting he never stopped. He was an even hotter hitter than Rice or Lynn in mid-summer.

Johnson maneuvered his players at other positions also. He used both Doug Griffin and Denny Doyle with excellent results at second base. With Carlton Fisk out for long periods with injuries, Johnson alternated between Bob Montgomery and Tim Blackwell behind the plate. And, without a Rollie Fingers in the bullpen, he used a variety of relievers all year.

THE MAN BEHIND THE SCENE . . .

DICK O'CONNELL

by DAVE O'HARA

New England A.P. Sports Editor

Shortly after World War II, a freshly discharged Naval officer dropped into the Red Sox' office at Fenway Park. It marked a fateful decision for Richard H. "Dick" O'Connell and the Red Sox.

Now, nearly 30 years later, O'Connell is the No. 2 man in the Red Sox' organization, the Executive vice president and General Manager under owner and president Tom Yawkey.

Dick O'Connell is no stranger in the baseball world. He is quoted often in newspapers and magazines and on radio and television. His picture is prominent in the media throughout the year. However, he remains the "man behind the scene" in many respects.

The average fan probably never recognizes O'Connell as he walks, even sits, in the stands before, during and after games. Dick dresses to fit the situation, walking softly and saying little as he listens and surveys everything.

One day he may be dressed in a sport shirt and slacks, the next in a style business suit. And his mod sport jackets and slacks are the envy of all who know him, particularly some stylish sports writers.

There's an old saying that you usually can figure a man by the clothes he wears. In O'Connell's case, however, it would be a grave error.

O'Connell, with Yawkey's blessing, has surrounded himself with high calibre personnel — men who make a baseball organization successful.

However, Dick O'Connell oversees the entire operation. Some decisions may appear snap judgments, but everything is carefully thought out, most of the time through preparation and discussions.

"We rarely, if ever, do anything on the spur of the moment," O'Connell says. "Even when we make trades, a great deal of work goes into all phases, such as scouting reports and all. We don't try to leave anything to chance, although in a player deal there is always such an element."

A native of Winthrop, Mass., O'Connell attended his local schools. He went on to Boston College, playing both baseball, as a first baseman, and football as an undergraduate, and later earning his Master's degree. He became a teacher-coach in a prep school and played sandlot ball with many outstanding players just prior to World War II.

Commissioned in the Navy, he went to intelligence school and, in 1942, was sent to Pearl Harbor.

HIGHLIGHTS OF 1975

It All Started:

OPENING DAY APRIL 8: 34,055 turned out at Fenway Park to see Sox open with Milwaukee . . . Duffy Lew- is threw out the first ball and Hank Aaron and Tony Conigliaro received standing ovations . . . Conigliaro got the game's first hit . . . Luis Tiant hurled an 8-hitter as the Red Sox won 5-2.

The First Big Series:

APRIL 11: Conigliaro hit the Sox first 1975 home run, in the fifth inning in Baltimore . . . Rick Burleson then lined a home run to left off Doyle Alexander to tie the score . . . Then with one out in the 12th Yastrzemski hit the first pitch for a home run.

APRIL 12: Another come-back, another extra-inning win . . . Dwight Evans homered to left with one-out in the 9th to tie the score at 2-2 . . . In the 13th Doug Griffin singled to drive in pinch-runner Rick Miller with the winning run . . . Reggie Cleveland, with 12 innings of 8-hit pitching, got the win with help from Dick Drago.

APRIL 15: The first Sox confrontation with Catfish Hunter and the Yankees . . . Bill Lee tossed a five-hitter for a 5-3 win at Shea Stadium.

APRIL 16: Rick Wise made it two straight over the Yankees, 4-2 . . . The big noise came from Fred Lynn who hit 2 home runs, one into the second deck, and a single, scored three runs and drove in two . . . Yastrzemski hit a two-run homer in the first inning.

Back Home:

APRIL 18: The Sox lost to the Orioles 9-7 but Jim Rice cracked his first two homers and Lynn hit a homer and two singles.

APRIL 20: Tiant beat Torrez 10-2 with a four-hitter as the Sox got 11 hits and 11 walks.

APRIL 23: After two losses to the Yankees the Sox beat Hunter coming from behind to win 11-7 . . . A 5-run rally in the 7th, capped by Bob Montgomery's two-run double put the Sox ahead and Lynn's three-run double in the 8th wrapped it up.

The First Surge:

MAY 1: Bernie Carbo's double and two-run homer got the Sox off to a quick 5-0 lead and Rice's solo homer in the 5th off Jim Perry provided the final 7-6 winning margin . . . That started a 6-game winning string.

MAY 5-6-7: A three-game sweep in Cleveland behind Tiant, Lee and Reggie Cleveland.

MAY 9: Wise hurled a 3-hit, 4-1 win in Anaheim for the 6th straight win and a 13-9 record.

Excitement In Fenway:

MAY 18: Wise pitched a four-hitter over the Royals at Fenway as the Sox snapped a five-game losing streak, 4-2 . . . Carbo's two home runs accounted for all the runs.

MAY 19-20-21: The Sox took three from the Oakland A's . . . Tiant won 11-5 . . . Lee beat Blue the next night, 7-0, with a 2-hit, 1-walk, 78-pitch masterpiece . . . Rice and Conigliaro homered off Blue. Reggie Cleveland finished the sweep, 7-3, with Rico Petrocelli's two-run homer off Ken Holtzman. Yastrzemski provided the winning margin with a grand slam.

MAY 23: The Red Sox smashed four home runs, three off Nolan Ryan, as Tiant won 6-1 . . . Yastrzemski hit a two-run homer in the fifth and Evans cracked a solo blast in the 6th . . . Lynn added a fourth homer off Chuck Dobson.

MAY 24: Angels Mgr. Dick Williams had his team take "batting practice" in the hotel lobby in reply to a Lee statement about his team's weak hitting . . . Lee then stopped the Angels 6-0 with a 5-hitter . . . That made the Sox 20-16 and put them into first place for the first time since April 23.

MAY 26-JUNE 1: The Sox increased their lead to 4 games with a 4-1 trip to Texas and Minnesota . . . Lee beat the Rangers with a four-hitter . . . The Sox then concluded their best May since 1969 (16-9) by whipping the Twins twice with a total of 23 runs and 29 hits, including 12 for extra-bases.

JUNE 3: Dick Pole made his second start and turned in his first major league shutout, a 4-0 three-hitter over the White Sox, with Rice's three-run homer in the first the key hit.

JUNE 4: Jim Kaat was cruising along with a 6-3 lead into the ninth . . . Chi-sox relief ace Rich Gossage came in with two on and one out . . . Three consecutive pinch-hits, tied the score, before Burleson's two-out single knocked in the game-winner.

JUNE 6-7-8: One of the year's wildest series . . . Two home runs and six RBI by Evans, including a grand slam, sparked a 13-10 win . . . Lynn's sixth-inning homer tied Saturday's game, and singles by Yastrzemski and Lynn in the 8th brought Lee a 3-1 win . . . It was a 1-1 duel between Pole and Dave Goltz on Sunday . . .

The Twins then scored 6 times in the 9th . . . The Sox got 5 back in the last of the 9th but lost 7-5.

The First Long Trip:

JUNE 11-22: The journey through Chicago, Kansas City, Detroit and Baltimore produced a 9-4 record and proved the Sox could win on the road . . . It started with a 9-7 14-inning marathon in Chicago won by Yastrzemski's two-run homer to left . . . It ended with Tiant's masterful 5-1, 12-strikeout victory in Baltimore . . . In between came heroics by Lynn. He put together a 20-game batting streak . . . He was stopped in Detroit June 16 as the Sox won 6-2 in 12 innings . . . Two days later he exploded for three home runs, a triple and a single, 10 RBI, 16 total bases and 4 runs scored to pace a 15-1 romp over the Tigers . . . He set a major league rookie record for total bases, tied the A.L. record for total bases and tied the major league rookie records for RBI and home runs in one game . . . It was the first three-homer game by a Red Sox player since Joe Lahoud in 1969 . . . On June 13 the Sox acquired second baseman Denny Doyle from the Angels.

Fisk Returns:

The Red Sox came back to Fenway and lost three games to the Indians to fall out of first place . . . However, Carlton Fisk returned to action after missing 63 games with a broken arm . . . In a battle for first place with the Yankees Boston won three of the four games and drew a total of 136,615 fans to set a four-game series record . . . Boston moved into first place to stay with a 40-30 record.

A Flirt With Fame: July 2, Milwaukee:

A crowd of 34,455 watched in awe in Milwaukee as Wise retired 18 straight Brewers . . . Two Brewers reached in the seventh on an error and a walk but Wise mowed down the next seven . . . With two out in the 9th he walked Billy Sharp on four pitches and George Scott then cracked a 1-1 pitch for a two-run homer to break up the no-hit bid . . . Rice hit two homers, one, a 450-foot smash that landed four rows from the top of the left center field stands . . . On July 4 right-hander Jim Willoughby was purchased from the Cardinals.

The Big Streak: July 7-19:

The Sox went on a 10-game winning streak that built their lead from one to 6½ games . . . Rice's 3-run homer

Spaceman's Message to Earthpeople:

"Everyone says that a name like 'Spaceman' has to have a great beginning. What happened is, I'm pitching in Baltimore, and it's the year we landed on the moon. I threw the greatest game of my career. When the writers came in to interview me, I started asking them questions. I said, 'How's Armstrong and Aldrin doing?' Some guy gets a hold of it and says, 'Bill Lee's more interested in space than he is in his own performance.' I figured, well, baseball's baseball. But it's not that big and spectacular. I was more concerned with something that was historic. And even though they were landing on a dead crater, you know, they could have been going to Mars or something like that (which is going to be really great). I started rapping with the guy about space and extraterrestrial life, and the next thing I know, there's an article out, and it's about Bill Lee, 'The Spaceman!' It started there and it's been building ever since.

Also, I guess you could say that I get 'spaced out' on music. I used to have a portable for when I traveled. The thing that started getting me interested in a real music system was when I finally got a home! And I wanted a system that would look nice in the house. Something that I could listen to and be proud of.

I've been in a lot of stores around town, and I found out that when I went in and didn't tell them who I was, the one that suited me the best was Tech Hifi. And that's the truth. They treated me real decent.

The average person comes in off the street and says, 'Here, help me,' and Tech Hifi makes it real simple. They've got the knowledge to make it simple. They treat you like an individual. And you come out of the store with what you really want."

What makes Canadian Club and V.O. good, makes O.F.C. better.

Time is what makes good,
better.

That's why every drop of O.F.C. Prime Canadian
Whisky is aged a full eight years (the prime aging period for a Canadian).

Canadian Club and V.O.
are aged only six years.

But two years is more than just a difference you can read on a label. It's a difference you can taste in a glass.

So why settle for good,
when you could be enjoying better? Enjoy Bottled-in-

It's Easy to Keep Score

Baseball Shorthand, as used by the news media to render every game more enjoyable to baseball enthusiasts. All players are numbered and all plays recorded by symbols. For symbols and example of system, see below:

CODE NUMBER OF PLAYERS AS FOLLOWS

Pitcher	1	Second Baseman	4	Left Fielder	7
Catcher	2	Third Baseman	5	Center Fielder	8
First Baseman	3	Shortstop	6	Right Fielder	9

SYMBOLS FOR PLAYS

Single	—	Fielder's Choice	FC	Passed Ball	PB
Double	==	Hit by Pitcher	HP	Balk	BK
Triple	===	Wild Pitch	WP	Struck Out	K
Home Run	====	Stolen Base	S	Base on Balls	BB
Reached base on error	E	Sacrifice Hit	SH	Force Out	FO

The lower lefthand corner of the scoring block should be considered as home plate. Progress is counter-clockwise with progress to first base indicated in lower right-hand corner, to second in upper righthand corner, to third in upper lefthand corner and to home in lower left. In example to left, batter reached first on an error by the second baseman, stole second, went to third on a wild pitch and scored on a passed ball. It is convenient to encircle all runs as shown so that scoring plays may be seen at a glance.

SAVES RULE CHANGES FOR 1975

Baseball's Scoring Rules Committee has revised the Saves Rule which has been in effect for the past year. The new rule 10.20 reads as follows:

Credit a pitcher with a save when he meets all three of the following conditions:

- (1) He is the finishing pitcher in a game won by his club; and
- (2) He is not the winning pitcher; and
- (3) He qualifies under one of the following conditions:
 - (a) He enters the game with a lead of no more than three runs and pitches for at least one inning; or
 - (b) He enters the game with the potential tying run either on base, at bat or on deck; or
 - (c) He pitches effectively for at least three innings.

No more than one save may be credited in each game.

COOPERSTOWN

"Your attention, please. Here are today's lineups. For the Red Sox: Hooper, right field; Speaker, center field; Ruth, first base; Williams, left field; Foxx, catcher; Cronin, short-stop; Jimmie Collins, third base; Boudreau, second base, and Grove, pitching."

"BUCKY" HARRIS—Manager, Red Sox, 1934

What Boston fan wouldn't like to see this lineup take the field at Fenway Park! Especially with such players as Al Simmons, Heinie Manush and Jesse Burkett in reserve and Cy Young, Herb Pennock, Jack Chesbro, Red Ruffing and Waite Hoyt available to back up Grove! And Ed Barrow, Joe McCarthy, Hugh Duffy and Frank Chance forming the board of strategy!

True, three of the players named to the starting lineup—Ruth, Foxx and Boudreau—are listed at positions other than their familiar ones. But each had experience there and demonstrated he was capable of handling the role.

This summer the Red Sox made their fifth appearance in the Hall of Fame series when they met the San Francisco Giants. The game topped off Hall of Fame Day, the biggest event of the year in the village where the sport was invented.

That same morning, in ceremonies in Cooper Park adjacent to the Museum and the National Baseball Library, two of the 5 men who were elected to the Hall of Fame early this year—Billy Herman and Stanley "Bucky" Harris, both former Red Sox, were formally inducted. Many of the game's top brass, Commissioner Bowie Kuhn, and most of the living Hall of Fame members, were in attendance.

The Red Sox obviously figure prominently in the exhibits. The impressive Hall of Fame gallery contains handsome bronze bas-relief plaques of all Hall of Fame members, including the 21 who played for or managed the Red Sox.

Only a few steps from the main entrance is a display on Ted Williams. It features his Red Sox uniform, the bat and baseball from his 521st and final homer on September 28, 1960.

Other exhibits with a Red Sox touch include a baseball from Lefty Grove's 300th victory on July 25, 1941; the bat and ball involved in a 1916 World Series homer hit by Harry Hooper; a Red Sox uniform and glove used by Herb Pennock; the gold cuff links given Jimmie Foxx for appearing in the 1936 All-Star Game, Joe Cronin's uniform, and a large photo of Babe Ruth as a Red Sox pitcher in 1916.

These are but a few of the hundreds upon hundreds of items on display at the Hall of Fame. A trip to Cooperstown to see the Baseball Hall of Fame should be a must for every Red Sox fan. ■

Fenway Franks bring home plate to home plate.

Sometimes the best part of the game is the hot dogs that go with it.

You have to have a frank or two before you check out your scorecard.

And who takes a seventh inning stretch without a seventh inning snack?

Trouble was, you had to leave the taste behind when you left the park.

But now it's a whole new ballgame, because now you can take Colonial's Fenway beef Franks, the hot dog sold at Fenway Park, to your own home plate.

Pick up a package at

against the Twins gave Wise his 10th win July 7th . . . The next night Lynn delivered a 9th-inning pinchhit single for a 6-5 victory . . . On July 9th the Sox rallied from a 7-1 deficit for a 9-8 win to sweep the Twins. Cooper's pinchhit homer over the Red Sox bullpen in the 9th tied the game . . . A pinch single by Doug Griffin and Rice's two-out double to left center won it.

JULY 10 . . . Even Gaylord Perry and a 26-minute pre-game rain delay couldn't stop the Sox . . . Lynn drove in 4 runs with a single, double and homer . . . And in the last of the 9th Doyle's two-out single, a passed ball and Cooper's single to left made it 8-7 Sox over the Rangers and ended Perry's 13-game winning streak against Boston . . . The onslaught continued with 11-8, 10-4 and 7-5 wins over the Rangers that gave the Sox a 50-37 record and a 4½ game lead at the All Star break . . . Yastrzemski raised his average to a season-high of .313.

JULY 17-18: Tiant made his record 13-8 with a five-hitter over the Royals. Lee beat Steve Busby 9-3 backed by a 14-hit attack that included a titanic homer by Rice in the third inning that went over the center field wall to the right of the flagpole, only the sixth time ever accomplished at Fenway.

Back On The Road:

JULY 19-27: The Red Sox had an 8-3 trip against the Rangers, Twins and Yankees . . . The winning streak reached an A.L. season-high of 10 when Wise shut out the Rangers 8-0 . . . Lee, Moret and Wise pitched the Sox to three wins in Minnesota, July 22-23-24.

The Yankees Are Stopped:

JULY 25-26-27: Shea Stadium went crazy when the Yankees won the opener of the four-game series, 8-6, before 40,165 . . . But the Sox bounced back to win 4-2 on Saturday behind Cleveland and a three-run ninth with 37,387 attending . . . Then came a double-header sweep, 1-0 and 6-0, behind Lee and Moret . . . 53,631 saw Lee beat Hunter in the opener on an unearned run in the 9th . . . Then in the bottom of the ninth inning Lynn made a great diving catch in deep left center to take away a probable triple from Graig Nettles . . . Yastrzemski homered and Rice had four hits in the second-game romp that left the Yankees 10 games behind.

Success In July:

The Sox enjoyed their best July since 1948 with a 22-11 record . . . Highlights featured a double-header win July 31st that started a five-game sweep of the Tigers.

Doyle's Streak:

Doyle compiled an A.L. hitting streak high of 22 games from July 9 through Aug. 4 . . . He hit .392 with 31 hits in 79 at bats and no strikeouts . . . He was stopped by Jim Palmer Aug. 4.

Criss-Crossing America:

In August the Sox went on a 16-day, 15-game trip to Milwaukee, Oakland, Anaheim, Chicago and Kansas City, with an off-day Hall of Fame game in Cooperstown against the Giants . . . The Sox had a 9-6 record while losing only ½-game from their 7½-game-margin over the Orioles.

Staying On Top:

The Red Sox were 5-5 during a late August homestand but lost just a half game to the Orioles . . . Wise tossed an eight-hitter at the A's August 29 before 34,341 to make his record 17-8 . . . Cooper was the big gun with a homer, two doubles and a bunt single . . . The A's came back behind Rollie Fingers to win the next two games, 7-6 in 10 innings and 8-6 in three-hours, 49 minutes, the league's longest nine-inning game . . . After a September 1 loss to the Yankees, Reggie Cleveland, with a save by Drago, topped the New Yorkers, 7-4.

Victory In Baltimore:

SEPT. 3-4: The Sox went into Baltimore 6 games ahead and came up with two wins . . . Wise out-pitched Palmer, 3-2, with Cooper's 10th-inning homer the game-winner . . . Then Pole and Drago combined for a 3-1 win over Mike Torrez as the Sox scored twice in the first and again in the ninth on Fisk's triple and a wild pitch.

Big Explosion:

SEPT. 6: The scoreboard showed 20 runs and 24 hits for the Sox in Milwaukee . . . Five doubles, homers by Burleson, Fisk and Petrocelli plus five hits by Evans helped the Sox to the 20-6 win . . . The Sox scored seven runs in the second inning to break it open.

SEPT. 7: In Milwaukee the Sox came up with six runs the last three innings to pull out a 6-3 win for Cleveland . . . The Sox lost the second game, however, 7-3 on a three-hitter by young lefty Billy Travers who had been driven from the mound the day before in the second inning.

The Race Tightens:

The Sox lost two in Cleveland, the Orioles won two in Milwaukee and the lead dropped to five games . . .

Back in Fenway the Sox got untracked by winning two of three from the Tigers . . . The highlight was Tiant's bid for a no-hitter after a week's lay-off with a bad back . . . He allowed just one walk for 7.2 innings before Aurelio Rodriguez lined a 3-2 pitch into center for a hit . . . Tiant had a 3-1 three-hit, 10-strikeout winner for his first victory since August 15 . . . The Sox then won three out of four from the Brewers while the Orioles kept winning in Cleveland and Detroit to reduce the margin to 4½ games . . . When the Sox won their third straight from the Brewers 9-7 September 15, the highlight came when Lynn and Rice each drove in their 100th RBI on a bases-loaded walk and sacrifice fly on consecutive pitches in the second inning . . . It was the first time a team had two rookies with 100 RBI since 1938.

The Final Challenge:

SEPT. 16-17: The Orioles had their aces Palmer and Torrez ready for Tiant and Wise in the last key showdown in Fenway . . . Tiant twisted and spun his way to a 2-0, five-hit, eight-strikeout victory to the delight of 34,724 . . . Palmer was also tough but was the loser on homers to Petrocelli in the third and Fisk in the fourth. The next night the Birds came roaring back before another huge crowd to defeat the Red Sox 5-2. Torrez, the winner — Wise, the loser.

The Bad News:

THE ULTIMATE:

The Good News:

SEPT. 27: Red Sox win their first A.L. East Division title.

At Pearl, O'Connell met Eddie Doherty, the Red Sox' publicist at the time, on leave during the war. Doherty asked Dick one time what he planned to do after the war. O'Connell said he didn't know and was invited to visit Fenway Park.

"I was always interested in baseball, but I really wasn't thinking about a job with the Red Sox when I visited Ed that day," Dick says. "It's funny how things work out."

O'Connell, introduced around, was hired. In 1946, he became the business manager of the Lynn Red Sox in the old Class B New England League. A short time later, he was promoted to the parent club. He became home secretary in 1949, director of park operations in 1951, executive vice president of business operations in 1960.

Then, in 1965, owner Tom Yawkey made a big decision. Displeased with the Red Sox' dismal records, he fired Mike Higgins as general manager and named O'Connell to the post. It was a coincidence that Dave Morehead pitched a no-hitter for the Red Sox that day.

It's been no coincidence, however, that the Red Sox have become an American League power since Dick O'Connell's appointment. Tough but fair, quiet but outspoken when necessary, he is one of the most respected executives in baseball. In fact, he's the only non-owner permitted, by direction of Yawkey, to sit in on owners' meetings.

In 1967, O'Connell swung mid-season trades for Gary Bell, Jerry Adair and Elston Howard. The Red Sox won the pennant. Later, he made key trades for many other players such as Ray Culp, Luis Aparacio, and Doug Griffin.

The Red Sox remained out of the trade market last winter, waiting for a scheduled inter-league deal opening in March. That opening was ended by the refusal of the players' association to go along. However, O'Connell was not perturbed. He waited patiently.

Late in spring training he sent shortstop Mario Guerrero to the St. Louis Cardinals for a player to be named later. When the Red Sox needed a relief pitcher, he named Jim Willoughby as the player. Willoughby has helped tremendously. And, of course, no fan will forget the acquisition of second baseman Denny Doyle from the California Angels.

"Every trade is a gamble, you just go out and look for winning ballplayers," Dick says. "When trades work, you look good. When they don't, you have to forget about it."

Dick O'Connell may be tough, but he's fair. Just ask Bernie Carbo, the only player ever to take the Red Sox to arbitration. Carbo, after a so-so first season with the Red Sox in 1974, asked for a sizeable raise. The Red Sox, O'Connell, refused, and then won at the arbitration table. Many observers thought Carbo would be let go by the Red Sox.

"Heck, no," O'Connell said. "Bernie is a good kid. He just had bad advice. I even made a point to visit with him in Florida. Look at the way he's helped us out this year."

"I didn't know what to expect, but now I understand things better because of Mr. O'Connell," Carbo said. "You know, he's the first general manager who ever really talked to me. He talked to me in spring training and made me feel welcomed."

That's Dick O'Connell — the man behind the scene! But always around somewhere, in the clubhouse, dugout, stands, on the roof, his office. You name it. ■

Managing a team with no talent is the toughest task in baseball, but sometimes it is just as difficult to manage a team with a lot of talent. No player likes to sit on the bench, and Johnson was forced to sit a lot of potential regulars on the bench this year.

At times he had as many as six potential starters hoping to work in regular rotation. His rotation for most of the season was Luis Tiant, Bill Lee, Roger Moret and Wise. But Reggie Cleveland and Dick Pole were crowding the others for starting assignments. Instead of allowing that situation to become a headache, Johnson used it to his advantage by constantly juggling his pitching assignments.

Now, in his second year of managing in the major leagues, Darrell Johnson has finished on top. He has one of the youngest teams in the league, and there is every reason to believe the Red Sox will remain contenders or champions for several years.

At age 48, Johnson has a bright future ahead of him in baseball. He played seven years in the majors, but never achieved stardom. Five seasons of minor league managing polished Johnson's style and gave him the opportunity he cherished so much to manage in the major leagues.

Last year was a bitter disappointment to Johnson, even if he won't admit it. But, the rewards of 1975 should go a long way toward erasing the bitter memories of 1974.

Johnson broke in a number of fine young players this year, and won the divisional championship at the same time. Winning with a flock of young players is the ultimate goal of any manager. Darrell Johnson achieved that goal in 1975. ■

THE MOST MEMORABLE MOMENT AND PERSONALITY IN RED SOX HISTORY

What do you think was the most memorable moment in Red Sox history, and who do you think is or was the most memorable personality in Red Sox history?

You, along with fans, across the country will have the opportunity to make your selections known by filling in the coupon below, as baseball searches for the game's most memorable moment and most memorable personality. Voting by Red Sox fans will run from now until the end of the season, and will be tied in with baseball's part in the nation's Bicentennial celebration in 1976.

Here are just some of the memorable highlights in Red Sox history . . . you might have your own special memory in place of these . . . in any event, make your selection on the coupon below and drop it in the mail.

Sept. 28, 1941 — Ted Williams gets six hits to keep average over .400.

Oct. 1, 1967 — Jim Lanborg is mobbed at Fenway Park after pitching 5-3 win over Minnesota to clinch a tie for American League pennant.

Sept. 26, 1960 — Ted Williams' farewell home run — last at bat.

June 23, 1917 — Ernie Shore's perfect game after relieving Babe Ruth in 1st inning.

June 18, 1953 — Red Sox 17 runs in 7th inning.

July 8, 1941 — Ted Williams' three run homer to win the All Star game in 9th inning.

June 21, 1938 — Mike Higgins' 12 consecutive hits.

May 5, 1904 — Cy Young's perfect game vs the A's.

Sept. 9, 1918 — Babe Ruth's 292 $\frac{2}{3}$ consecutive scoreless innings in World Series.

Sept. 15, 1912 — Joe Wood's 16th straight victory.

Space doesn't permit the listing of all the memorable personalities in Red Sox history, but everyone has his or her favorite to be recorded below.

Events and players picked in local voting will be announced in December at the annual baseball meetings in Hollywood, Florida. From that list, a national ballot will be prepared for voting during the first half of the 1976 season. The results of national balloting will be announced at the All Star game in Philadelphia in July, 1976.
